

We Respect Your Privacy

Learn more at: <http://www.incyte.com/privacy-policy>

Healthcare Professional Information Notice

Incyte Biosciences Australia Pty Ltd and its parent company Incyte Biosciences International Sàrl process your personal data in order to:

- Schedule meetings with you;
- Determine your medical specialty, tailor communications (promotional, medical, or educational) to your professional interests and perform tiering, targeting and segmentation activities;
- Capture our assessment of your exposure to specific disease areas and related products as well as interest in Incyte products, based on your interactions with Incyte;
- Initiate or follow-up for clinical development programs; and/or
- Comply with voluntary or regulatory transparency reporting disclosures or other regulatory obligations.

We may process your data for other purposes. These purposes depend on our specific interactions with you, which could include:

- Adverse events/special situations/product complaints made by you, by one of your patients, or another person;
- Your potential or actual involvement as research investigator or research staff member;
- Your medical information requests;
- Service/consulting agreements between you and us; and/or
- To train, test, and develop the systems and tools - including AI and machine learning models - that we use to process your data for those other purposes (for example, compliance monitoring). Such tools operate under our instructions and decisions are subject to human review (no automated decision making)

In certain instances you need to provide us with your personal data in order for Incyte to meet regulatory or legal obligations or where it is necessary for us to enter into a contract with you. In all other instances, you are not obliged to provide us with any personal data.

We collect your personal data directly from you and, where applicable, from publicly available sources, professional directories, healthcare institutions, event organisers, service providers and other third parties with whom we interact. We do not use sensitive information for these purposes unless permitted by applicable law. Where personal information is used for direct marketing, you may opt out of receiving such communications at any time. Where consent is required, this is obtained separately.

Your personal data is shared by Incyte with:

- Other companies in the worldwide Incyte Group, wherever located (a list of all Incyte companies is available under: <https://incyte.com/contact-us/locations>);
- Third party consultants, service providers, partner companies contracted by or on behalf of Incyte or its affiliates, wherever located;
- Healthcare professional boards, authorities, wherever located;

- Government agencies, regulators, or public authorities, but only when they require us to. In some instances, these government agencies may make your personal data public in accordance with applicable laws or guidelines;
- Publically online as part of voluntary transparency disclosures; and
- Where required by institutional policy or government entity, to your employer.

We may disclose your personal data to recipients outside Australia. Your personal data may be disclosed:

- To the European Union (EU), United Kingdom, Switzerland and Japan;
- To other countries, including the United States, India and China.

Where Incyte discloses personal data to an overseas recipient, it will take reasonable steps as required by the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) and Australian Privacy Principle 8 to ensure that the overseas recipient does not breach the Australian Privacy Principles in relation to that information, subject to applicable exceptions.

You can learn more about Incyte's privacy practices under the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) and the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs) by accessing <http://www.incyte.com/privacy-policy>. By accessing this link, you can learn about the types of personal data we collect, how we use it, whether collection and processing is optional, sources of the personal data we process, how it is shared, where it is stored or transferred to, how long we keep it, and contact information for Incyte, Incyte's privacy contact details and how to make a privacy complaint.

Under the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth), you may request access to and correction of the personal information we hold about you. You may opt out of direct marketing communications at any time. You may also complain to Incyte about a suspected breach of the APPs. If you are not satisfied with our response, you may lodge a complaint with the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC).

Who can you contact regarding your rights?

The entity responsible for handling your personal information under the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) will generally be Incyte Biosciences Australia Pty Ltd, but may depend on our relationship with you.

- Healthcare Professional Business Contacts: Incyte Biosciences Australia Pty Ltd
- Research Investigators & Research Staff: the sponsor of the research for which you are an investigator.
- Adverse Event/Special Situation/Product Complaint Reporters: For clinical study products, the sponsor of the research for which you are reporting. For marketed products: Incyte Biosciences Australia Pty Ltd
- Consultants: the Incyte affiliate that you have a contract with.
- Business Contacts at Institutions or Pharmacies: Incyte Biosciences Australia Pty Ltd or the Incyte affiliate that your institution or pharmacy contracts with.

A list of all Incyte companies is available here: <https://incyte.com/contact-us/locations>.

Privacy Contact Incyte: privacy@incyte.com

Privacy Regulator: Office of the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC), <https://www.oaic.gov.au/>.

Scan here to exercise
your privacy rights