Healthcare Professional Information Notice

Incyte Biosciences Canada and its parent company Incyte Biosciences International Sàrl process your personal data in order to:

- Schedule meetings with you;
- Determine your interest in receiving information relating to Incyte products;
- Provide information relevant to your professional interests such as promotional, medical and educational information;
- Initiate or follow-up for clinical development programs; and/or
- Comply with voluntary or regulatory transparency reporting disclosures or other regulatory obligations.

We may process your data for other purposes. These purposes depend on our specific interactions with you, which could include:

- Adverse events/special situations/product complaints made by you, by one of your patients, or another person;
- Your potential or actual involvement as research investigator or research staff member;
- Your medical information requests; and/or
- Service/consulting agreements between you and us.
- Business Contacts at Institutions or Pharmacies

In certain instances you need to provide us with your personal data in order for Incyte to meet regulatory or legal obligations or where it is necessary for us to enter into a contract with you.

In all other instances, you are not obliged to provide us with any personal data.

Your personal data is shared by Incyte with:

- Other companies in the worldwide Incyte Group, wherever located (a list of all Incyte companies is available under: <https://incyte.com/contact-us/locations>);
- Third party consultants, service providers, partner companies contracted by or on behalf of Incyte or its affiliates, wherever located;
- Healthcare professional boards, authorities, wherever located;
- Government agencies, regulators, or public authorities, but only when they require us to. In some instances, these government agencies may make your personal data public in accordance with applicable laws or guidelines;
- Publically online as part of voluntary transparency disclosures; and
- Where required by institutional policy or government entity, to your employer.

We may transfer your personal information to other jurisdictions outside of your province of residence (including to other Canadian provinces, the United States and other jurisdictions outside of your jurisdiction of residence in Canada) in order to achieve the purposes listed in this policy. All such transfers of your personal information will be made in accordance with applicable data protection laws, and we will use contractual and other methods to ensure that your personal information will continue to receive an adequate level of protection. You may contact Incyte’s Data Protection Officer (whose contact information is provided below) to obtain information about our policies and practices regarding our transfer of personal information outside of Canada, or to ask questions about the collection, use, disclosure or storage of personal information by us or our foreign service providers. Where required by applicable law, we will conduct the necessary data privacy impact assessments prior to communicating your personal information outside of your jurisdiction of residence.

You can learn more about Incyte’s data protection practices by accessing <http://www.incyte.com/privacy-policy>. By accessing this link, you can learn about the types of personal data we collect, how we use it, whether collection and processing is optional, sources of the personal data we process, how it is shared, where it is stored or transferred to, how long we keep it, and contact information for Incyte, Incyte’s data protection officer, and your supervisory authority.

You have a number of rights that apply to our use of your personal information. The availability of some of these rights depend on your province of residence and may also be subject to certain conditions and restrictions. You may have the right:

- to obtain access to the personal information that we hold about you, together with information about how and on what basis that personal information is processed;
- to correct the personal information that we have collected about you.

Your right to access or correction of the personal information that we hold about you is not absolute. There are instances where law or regulations allow or require us to refuse to provide some or all of the personal information that we hold about you. If we do not correct the information, we will explain the reasons why and annotate your file to show the request for correction. Where permitted by applicable laws, we expressly reserve the right to charge a reasonable fee for the transcription, reproduction or transmission of documents containing your personal information.

- Consent: You may have the right to withdraw consent to the collection, use and disclosure of your personal information, subject to limits in applicable law. Withdrawing consent does not affect the lawfulness of an use or communication of your personal information by us up to that point and does not oblige us to delete your personal information if we are otherwise allowed to retain it under applicable law.

Residents of Quebec may have the following rights:

- Portability: You may have the right to obtain a machine-readable copy of the personal information that we hold or to have us transfer it to another third party of your choice.
- De-indexation: You may have the right to request, in certain circumstances, that we cease disseminating your personal information or to de-index any hyperlink that allows access to that personal information by technological means, if such dissemination causes you harm or contravenes a court order or applicable privacy laws.

We may ask you for additional information to confirm your identity and for security purposes before processing your request.

If you have any questions about your personal information or to exercise any of the above rights, please contact Incyte’s Data Protection Officer via privacy@incyte.com or toll free at 833-919-0687.
